Biographical Note

Coe Smith Hayne was born on February 3, 1875 in Tecumseh, Lenawee County, Michigan to Marcus E. and Ella C. Tenbrook Haynes. He married Ethel May Shandrew June 28, 1909 and was a baptist minister. He died on June 26, 1961.

Isaac McCoy was born on June 13, 1784 in Fayette County, Pennsylvania to William McCoy and Elizabeth Royce. After moving to Kentucky in 1789, he met and married Christiana Polk in 1803 and they had 14 children. McCoy became an ordained Baptist minister and in 1817 he was appointed to be a missionary to the Native Americans of Indiana and Illinois. He started his first Indian school in 1818 in the area of Western Indiana that is now part of Parke County. McCoy moved to Fort Wayne and opened a new school in May of 1820. He then helped establish the Carey Mission near Niles, Michigan in 1822. In 1826, McCoy established the Thomas Mission in the area that is now Grand Rapids, Michigan and then relocated to Missouri in 1829. For the next decade, he worked for the government selecting and surveying locations to establish and maintain missions and schools for the Native peoples who had to relocate due to the Indian Removal Act of 1830. In 1842 he moved to Louisville, Kentucky to run the American Indian Missionary Association. Isaac McCoy died on June 21, 1846.
